"It's all over between us."

"But, sweethourt!"
"Don't sweethourt me!" "For heaven's sake, what can have made this change?" "I'll pever marry a medical man; that's what! I'd rather marry an ucdertaker."

"But you have made no objection to my studying medicine before now, "A sexton in a cemetery would be far preferable to a sawbones. "Come, tell me what has happened to excite this antagonism to the no blest or the professions." "Weren't you and Dick Trimming bam riding in a trolley yesterday on College street?"

"And who was the third person of the party?" "We had a skeleton with us. W were taking it to our rooms." "And who was the person you called "Why, that was what we called the skeleton. "So, Indeed, you called it Billy? And "So, indeed, you called it Billy? And dents are writing shorthand in 18 who put the cigarette between its days and it will not be on sale long.

jaws and said, 'Don't smoke, Billy; it isn't allowed?" "Oh, you must have been told this yarn by some mean, contemptible"-

"Not a bit of it. No one told me." "Then how did you get on to it?" "Never mind that. Was it necessary that you should put a nickel between the horrid tuing's finger bones and say, 'Here, Billy, pay your fare like a man?" "Did we do that?"

"Yes, you did." "You mean Dick did it."

"It doesn't matter which of you did You were both acting like ghouls. And if you didn't do it you did something equally frightful." "What was that?"

"You said: 'Billy, you ought to have worn your overcost. You'll eateh cold.' "I-I was thinking of the real perso the skeleton was before he died.

"Oh, you were! Then why did you laugh when Dick said, 'He slipped out the back door and got away from his poor old mother, who was chasing him with his rubbers?"

"Did I laugh at that?" "You know very well you laughed at

"If wasn't funny at all, was it?" "Funny! It was shocking."

"Well, Dick, he"yes; it's always 'Dick, he That's the way you crawl out of everything. Whose hat was on the thing's head?" "I put my hat on it, but only for a

"And said, 'There's too much draft for a bald head."

"That wasn't funny either."

"It was revolting."

"I wish you'd tell me how you got on to all this."

"Perhaps you don't remember a girl who got into the car with a thick veli over her face to protect her from the storm and hung on to a strap. The thing was sitting on your lap"-

"Ob, my"-"And you said-what did you say?" "I don't remember."

"Don't remember! You said, 'Get up, Billy, and give the lady your sent." A pause-a dreadful pause. "And the girl was"-

One who had often sat on your lap and felt your arms about her and your kisses. To think that I should have been forced to listen to such words and see that awful thing sitting in my place! I can't bear the thought of It.' Another very long pause.

What did you do?" "What did I do? I know what I wanted to do. I wanted to tell the conductor to let me get off, but just then a gentleman-a real gentleman. such as I always supposed you be-arose and gave me his scat. I shut my eyes to keep from looking at the grinning ghost opposite, but I kept my ears open to hear what next the man I have loved would say." (Weeps.)

A pause, in which the young man looks at the celling, the floor, the walls, anything, everything except the girl; then be gulps sorrowfully; "I suppose R's all over between us?"

"I should think so," "This evening I'll not have you by me, as usual. You'll not sit on my lap; my heart'll not beat against yours. I'll sit alone in my room, with no one to comfort me except"-

A pause.
"Who'll comfort you?"
"None but Billy."

"You don't deserve any one-I mean

"It'll be awful lonesome sitting there that way."

"What way?" "With nobody but Billy." An ominous pause.

"Suppose I promise never any more?" No answer.

"You know I've always leved you never any one else in the world. It's pretty hard to have no real person to. love, only a"-

No encouragement. "Goodby."

He takes her hand, and she makes a feint at withdrawing it.

"Just one kiss before we part." "Not a single one." I I I II II II II II "I'll never, never do anything to of-fend you again."

"Won't you forgive me? If I go to that awful room with that awful thing there I do believe I'll blow out my brains. He draws her down into his lap.
